BRUSILOFF ADVANCES

BULGARS DEVASTATE
GREEK TERRITORY IN MACEDONIA.

LONDON, Aug. 26.—The early capture of Thiepval by the British is forecasted by the official statement of the war office today. It is announced that the British have captured 400 yards of trenches on the Courcellette-Thiepval road and have made further progress at Moquet farm.

Thiepval, which lies near the northern end of the Somme front has been under attack by the British since the great offensive of the allies opened on the first of July. The progress made last night by the British all but encircles the German garrison in Thiepval.

A German attack at Guillemont was repulsed.

PETROGRAD, Aug. 26.—Gen. Brusiloff's armies that are driving against the Austro-Hungarians defending the Carpathian passes have made fresh progress, the Russian war office announced today. West of Nadvorna the Russians have occupied Guta, near the Hungarian frontier.

In the Caucasus, the Russian forces that captured Mush are advancing southward.

The text of the official statement follows:

"In the Carpathians the enemy was dispersed west of Nadvorna. We occupied Guta and reached the sources of the Bystrzyca and by Strzyca-Nadvorna rivers in the regions of Rafalov.

"Caucasus front.—In the region of Winkylite in the sector of Lake Van there is stubborn fighting. After occupying Mush our troops advanced on the Kurtzagu ridge, where a number of Turkish prisoners were taken.

Attacks by the Germans in Champagne and on the Verdun front were repulsed by the French last night according to the official communique issued by the war office today. The Germans delivered an assault on the Fleury-Thiaumont line in an effort to fight their way back into the village of Fleury but it broke down, under the French fire.

Both the French and German positions in the sector of Maurepas, on the Somme front, were lashed with artillery fire all night. The big gun duels south of the Somme were very violent.

LONDON, Aug. 26.—The great German aerodrome at Namur, Belgium, has been bombed by British naval aeroplanes, the admiralty announced today. One of the British aeroplanes did not return.

LONDON, Aug. 26.—The British armed boarding steamer Duke of Albany has been sunk in the North sea by a German submarine with the loss of 24 lives. Announcement of the destruction of the ship was made today by the admiralty. It took place on Thursday.

Big Area in Eastern Macedonia Has Been Devastated.

SALONIKI, Aug. 26.—Bulgarian forces that have been operating east of the Struma river in the sector of Seres, have advanced 20 miles in a southeasterly direction, meanwhile engaging both British and Greek troops. The Belgar force is made up of regulars belonging to the Tenth division and Comitatias.

Infantry, cavalry and artillery are all engaged in the fighting east of Lake Tachinos, where the Bulgarians are engaged in a desperate effort to reach Pravista and Kavala, both of which towns are held by Greek troops. A big area of eastern Greek Macedonia is being devastated. The British have destroyed a number of bridges over the Angista river and the Bulgars are leaving a trail of desolation on their way.

Thousands of refugees are pouring toward Saloniki and other coast cities, bringing terrible stories of barbarities inflicted by the Bulgarians, principally the Comitatias.

Violent artillery duels continue along the center, on both sides of the Vardar river.

On the allies left wing, however, where the Servians and Russians are engaged in furious infantry struggles are in progress. More positions have been captured by the Serbs on the high grounds west of Lake Ostrovo.

Bigger Men Than You Are Wearing White This Summer!

The United Senate, taken individually, believes in white in the summer time. Here are six staid senators, most of them being from the west and south, who refuse to imprison themselves in black in a Washington summer. If white does not harm their dignity why should it hurt that of the every day man who has no hope of going to the United States Senate?

FOUL PLAY THEORY
IN MARION DEATH

MARION, O., Aug. 26.—Suspecting foul play, police today are trying to clear the mystery surrounding the death of Minto Nyelac, 31, Austrian, formerly of Wadsworth, whose body, showing marks of violence, was taken out of the Erie round house coal pit by the huge coal dipper early this morning. The pit contains about six feet of water. Coroner W. J. Welser said that the man had been dead six or seven hours.

MOB STONES GIRL'S ASSAILANT.

TOLEDO, O., Aug. 26.—Four hundred infuriated men and women at the Lucas county fair beat and stoned John O'Donnell, 33 years old, into insensibility because he took a nine-year-old girl into a stall of a live-stock barn and tried to attack her. O'Donnell was rescued by a squad of patrolmen and special detectives. The mob wanted to kill him.

ONE DIVORCE FOR EVERY 3 WED IN
OHIO PAST YEAR

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 26.—There was at least one divorce suit started in Ohio for every three marriages last year, according to Secretary of States Hildebrandt's report soon to be filed with Governor Willis. One divorce was granted and a marriage annulled for every marriages consummated in 1915. That the percentage of divorces has been steadily increasing is shown in the annual reports of former secretaries of state. There was only one divorce to every 12 marriages in Ohio 10 years ago.

Hildebrandt's report, now being prepared, indicates that it is the wife, instead of the husband, as a general rule, who first tires of wedded life. While 299 divorces were granted to husbands last year on the ground that their wives were unfaithful, only 196 wives were given divorces because of unfaithful husbands. On the other hand, 3,014 divorces were granted to wives against 1,354 to husbands because their mates neglected and deserted them.

Cruel husbands were responsible for the 1,607 divorces given their wives, while 201 husbands were divorced because of cruel wives. Only 38 husbands were granted divorces after their wives became victims of intoxicants while 394 wives were released from marital bonds because their husbands would become drunk. June continues to be the month most favored by "newlyweds." The least number of weddings take place in January. Of the 48,260 marriages solemnized during the year ending on March 31, last, 5,020 were in June, and 2,875 in January.

BLAME DEATH ON GASOLINE PRICE

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 26.—The high cost of gasoline led today to the death of Joseph Miller. Two men in an auto drove up to Miller's gasoline station and after filling their fifteen gallon tank started to drive away without paying. Miller jumped on the running board and the driver threw open the throttle. The men fought Miller for nine blocks and finally knocked him from the running board. Miller struck on his head as he fell to the street and died later in a hospital.

GETS PERMITS FOR
4 BRICK BUILDINGS
TO TOTAL $54,000

Four building permits, for the erection of structures, aggregating $54,000 in value, were issued by Clerk of Council James I. Heffner this morning to D. C. Dunn. One $20,000 business block with flats above, a $16,000 apartment house and a $10,000 combination business room and hotel building are included in the program of Mr. Dunn.

Directly opposite the Memorial hall, on West Elm street, will rise a brick building containing two business rooms and two flats. This is to cost $20,000. The $10,000 permit is a business room with a hotel above, on South Union between Spring and Elm streets. This will also be of brick.

Sixteen thousand dollars is to be the cost of a brick apartment house at the corner of North and Collett streets. It will be a two-story edifice, containing quarters for the accommodation of three families. The remaining permit, for $8,000, calls for a brick business room with a flat above, to be located on South Union street, between Spring and Elm streets.

6-YEAR-OLD GIRL DIES
TO SAVE BROTHER

CINCINNATI, O., Aug. 26.—Six-year-old George Appel of Dent, Ohio, is a hero. He sacrificed his life to save that of his brother Nicholas, 3. As the boys attempted to cross the pike a market wagon obstructed the view of C. W. Killin of this city, driving his automobile, and he was upon the children before he could stop the machine. George, seeing the impending danger, gave his younger brother a quick push out of harm's way, but George himself was caught by the machine and his life crushed out. Killin was held blameless for the accident.

TRIF STEALS WILL.

AKRON, O., Aug. 26.—While Mrs. C. W. Gasser, Boston Mills, this country, was reading the will of a relative she had just buried, a daring purse-snatcher grabbed her pocket-book, and the will and skipper. The incident happened at the gates of Glendale cemetery in broad daylight. Mrs. Gasser had $23 in the purse she told police.

RAILWAY SITUATION
FORCED TO CRISISHitch Comes On Issue of 8
Hour Day at 10 Hour
Wage Scale

DECISION COMES MONDAY

Both Sides Will Submit Ultimatums to President Wilson
Before That Date

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—With their counter proposition ready, declining to grant the "big four" brotherhood chiefs the eight-hour work day on a ten-hour wage basis, the railway presidents and managers today waited for opportunity to present it.

The strike danger was acute, but officials said that it was unlikely that any definite action could be arranged before Monday at the earliest, as after the railroads make their proposition to the president, he will be compelled to consider it carefully and then pass it on, if he so desires, to the brotherhood committeemen.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—The railroad strike situation was extremely acute this afternoon. President Wilson's efforts to get an agreement between the roads and their union employees are in grave danger of defeat. The situation was as follows:

The railroad presidents and managers were in secret session in the presidential suite of the Willard Hotel. They had agreed to reject the president's demand that they give the "big four" brotherhood employees an eight-hour work day on a ten-hour wage basis unless the unions would submit the proposition—and all collateral suggestions—to arbitration.

The brotherhood committee behind closed doors in the Bijou theater, talked over plans for the strike, that they have agreed shall be ordered if the railroads don't accept President Wilson's original proposition.

The men were in a very bitter mood and would take very little to drive a majority of them off the reservation.

They openly asserted that the railroad chiefs were trying to "hood-wink" the public; that they had accepted the president's offer at a great sacrifice, and that if he could not make good that offer, then they would strike and put the blame on the roads.

President Wilson remained in his study in the White House admittedly greatly troubled but determined to continue his efforts to avert a strike. The only word that came from the White House was that the situation "was serious but by no means hopeless."

STRIKE SITUATION IS GRAVE
Day Opens With Crisis Imminent in Railway Controversy.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—An atmosphere of gravity today surrounded negotiations for the settlement of the impending nation-wide railroad strike as the discussions shifted to the basis of the counter propositions evolved by the railroad heads.

The situation was described as serious but by no means hopeless as the railroad presidents and managers submitted their new settlement proposal to President Wilson for consideration by the representatives of the four railway brotherhoods.

Both sides had made final preparations for a strike emergency today. The representatives of the brotherhoods had drawn up the formal notice of strike, to be served on the railroad executives at the very moment it appears that a peaceful settlement is impossible.

They were likewise prepared with formal strike orders to be carried back to the men by the 640 district representatives now in Washington. The railway executives through their general managers, had taken every precaution to meet the strike order. They prepared to appeal from the brotherhood representatives here to the men in the ranks and to make a direct plea to the loyalty of their employees.

An imposing circular letter, setting forth the attitude of the railroads, and urging all of the employees to remain at work until a peaceful basis of settlement can be found, was prepared by the managers. This circular is in the hands of the headquarters of all the railroads involved to be distributed just as soon as it becomes apparent that the negotiations here have collapsed.

Despite the strike preparations President Wilson and administration officials generally were hopeful that the negotiations could be continued through the present crisis and an ultimate settlement reached. The president was determined to make every possible effort with every possible federal power behind him to prevent an open break.

The railroad executives completed the consideration of their counter demands and prepared them in written form. The proposal would recognize the eight-hour day as a basis of pay by implication. It would propose that the accounting departments of the roads at once begin computing the pay of the men on the eight-hour basis. It would insist, however, that the difference between the present pay basis and the proposed new plan should be impounded in the custody of the interstate commerce commission or some other federal authority, pending the permanent settlement of the dispute by arbitration. If the arbitrators awarded a permanent eight-hour day basis the fund would be distributed to the men. If they refused an eight-hour day, the money would go back to the railroads. Meantime an arbitration commission to be named by the president or in any other equitable way, would take charge of the entire dispute including the various contingent controversies attached to the eight-hour demand.

In the final consideration of the plan the executives decided to eliminate two proposals brought in by their committee. They decided that no formal agreement could be made as to an increase in freight rates to meet the wage increase, and determined to make that matter the subject of a gentleman's agreement with the president and other federal officers. They likewise determined to allow the president to handle on his responsibility the proposal for the creation of a permanent wage commission.

While no formal statement was forthcoming, it was plain today that the railroad proposal was far from satisfactory to the brotherhood representatives. They planned to formally consider the proposal, however, after it had been submitted to the president by the railroad executives. The brotherhood representatives were notified to meet the president at noon while the executives call was earlier in the day.

GALE AGAIN HEADS G. O. P. EXECUTIVE BOARD FOR COUNTY of the democratic state executive committee. The Fourth congressional district and the one north of it, the Fifth, comprise the bulk of Ohio democracy. Without the 13 counties in the two districts no candidate on the democratic ticket can be elected. The Fourth was the only one in the state—there were then 21—to go democratic in 1904, when Teddy swept the state. Going for Parker gave the district the name of being the strongest "Gibraltar" in the north. Garber's personality wasn't to blame for his election, either. The Fifth is about like it. Yet for the overwhelming democratic majorities expected from the counties in northwestern Ohio the state organization has made no provision in the form of representation on the guiding committee of the campaign.

On the last committee "Jack" Beall held the secretary's post, but this time a Cincinnati man grabbed it. J. Guy O'Donnell, of Miami, was pushed strongly for a place on the committee, but didn't connect. Every other portion of the state is represented.

NAVAL BATTLE IS ON AT NEW YORK

'Blue' and 'Red' Fleets Are Lined Up in Mimic Conflict.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—The two divisions of the Atlantic fleet today open the grand battle for possession of the north Atlantic coast and are now shelling each other with hundreds of blank shells very near the entrance of New York harbor. The navy department announced that Rear Admiral Helm's defending "blue" fleet came into contact with Admiral Mayo's invading "red" fleet at 5 o'clock this morning near Ambrose Light, Sandy Hook and are now at the high stage of the annual naval war game.

Rear Admiral Helm's defensive fleet is so far playing havoc with the invaders. Reports to the department stated that his fleet had "sunk" the battleships Texas and Nevada, and the destroyers Wadsworth and Tucker of the "red" fleet. The troop transports of the invaders have so far been out-manuevered and are unable to approach land.

The theoretical losses of the defensive fleet are the scout cruiser Birmingham and the destroyers Fanning, Drayton and Balch.

All the vessels "sunk" have dropped out of the game and gone into port. The battle will continue until 5 o'clock this afternoon unless before that time one of the fleet divisions gains a decisive victory.

WOMAN IS ARRESTED.

Lorain, O., Aug. 26.—Police have arrested Martha Marshall, wife of Julius Marshall, also being held by police pending an investigation of a mysterious fire in the Marshall home Sunday night. Both pleaded not guilty of arson and are held under $1,000 bonds. Firemen claim they found gasoline and kerosene sprinkled in a room and closet.

FIRE MARSHALS INVESTIGATE.

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 26.—Deputy state fire marshals are investigating the fire which caused over $150,000 damage in two lumber yards. Eight fire companies were still working on the blaze this morning. Fire Chief Wallace and the lumber company officials are unable to account for the blaze.

TRADE IS AFFECTED BY HOT WEATHER

Dun's Review Finds Recession in the Volume of Business.

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—Dun's Review has this to say regarding trade conditions:

Various influences, most of them temporary, have caused some recession in the volume of business. Production and distribution have both been lessened appreciably by oppressive heat over a wide area, while in some industries the necessity of repairs has become imperative and in others belated inventories are being taken. Operations at many of the works are also hindered by the scarcity of raw materials and shortage of labor, and the high prices and generally sold-up condition of mills and factories naturally tend to restrict buying. Yet in some important departments business moves under reduced momentum, in nearly all it is surprisingly large for the mid-summer period and previous gains should be augmented as the season advances. Extensive preparations are made for a general resumption of activity in the fall and winter, and in certain branches, notably in pig iron, the revival has set in earlier than expected. Notwithstanding the diminished harvest, the labor unrest and other disquieting elements, optimism continues the dominant note in reports from every section of the country. But while the magnitude of forward plans tends to widespread confidence in the future, the absence of speculative excesses constitutes the best feature of the situation. It is noteworthy that in spite of the recent remarkable expansion in commerce and industry, with profits unprecedented, there is still manifest a commendable disposition to confine commitments within the limits of safety. In this respect, at least, existing uncertainties are productive of good. Measured by bank clearings at centers outside New York, business this week is over 20 per cent larger than last year, though not all of the gain is in quantities, as prices are appreciably higher. Buoyancy on the Stock Exchange has continued along wholesome lines, while strong monetary conditions promote the supremacy of this country in the financial markets of the world.

SPALDING, FAMOUS PRELATE IS DEAD

PEORIA, Ill., Aug. 26.—Archbishop John Lancaster Spalding, who has been in failing health for the last two weeks, died here yesterday. The end was not unexpected and members of the archbishop's family were at his bedside. The archbishop was 76 years old.

The funeral of the archbishop will be held on Tuesday at 10 o'clock in the St. Mary's Cathedral, over which he presided for years. It is expected that Cardinal Gibbons of Baltimore will officiate.

The services will be solemnized with solemn pontifical requiem mass celebrated by Bishop Edward M. Dunne.

Archbishop John Lancaster Spalding was one of the oldest and most beloved prelates in America. He numbered among his warm friends not only men and women of his own faith but of others.

Former President Roosevelt was one of his great admirers, and during the twenty-odd years that the archbishop had many friends in both houses of congress. Bishop Spalding's public services outside of his diocese were largely in connection with labor and educational issues and in these he was brought in touch with practically all of the leaders in these fields.

Archbishop Spalding was born at Lebanon, Ky., June 2, 1840. Nineteen years later he received his A. B. degree at St. Mary's college, Maryland, and during the next 15 years studied extensively abroad. He spent much time at the university of Louvain, Belgium.

In 1865 he was ordained to the priesthood, becoming secretary to the bishop of Louisville. Six years later he was made chancellor of the diocese there, and the following year was sent to New York, where he spent seven years.

On May 1, 1877, he was consecrated Bishop of Peoria, where he served continually until his resignation in 1908 because of his ill health.

Archbishop Spalding was an author of distinction. Among his works are the Religious Mission of the Irish People, Lectures and Discourses, Education and the Higher Life, Things of the Mind, Means and the Soul, Religion, Agnosticism and Education, Religion and Art and Other Essays.

Archbishop Spalding is probably best remembered by the general public for his work in settlement of the great anthracite coal strike in 1902. He was a member of the commission appointed by President Roosevelt to bring peace in the mines and so successful were his individual efforts that he was universally admired and respected long after by the miners and operators alike.

MARION—Elke from various points in Central Ohio will attend the first annual clam bake to be given by Marion Elks here next Wednesday.

BETSON'S BUY WORTH WHILE

Old Trunk That He Bought Proves to be Treasure Chest.

WOOSTER, O., Aug. 26.—Edward Betson, a Wayne county farmer, was riding past the auctioneer's stand at the Adams Express company auction of unclaimed packages in Wooster a short time ago. The sale crier was offering a trunk for bids. "Dump it into my wagon and I'll give you 30 cents," remarked Betson. The auctioneer received the amount of the bid and Betson got the trunk. Arriving home he found two new suits of clothes, a dozen new automobile caps, a set of very fine tools and a roll of bills amounting to $25. It is said that the tools resemble those used by burglars, and it is thought that the trunkful of stuff was taken in a burglary somewhere and shipped to Wooster and that the one who shipped it got "cold feet" and was afraid to appear and claim it.

CHILDREN CRUSHED.

DAYTON, O., Aug. 26.—When a dug-out in which they were playing caved in today, Elmer Merritt, 9, and Eugene Garvey, 10, were buried, but were rescued by firemen and a band of laborers. The Merritt boy lost his left ear and was badly bruised.

HE DIDN'T WASTE IT.

A little boy went to Sunday school for the first time. His mother gave him a nickel to put in the collection box. When he returned he had a sack of candy.

"Where did you get the candy?" asked the mother.

"From the stand around the corner."

"But what did you buy it with?"

"With the nickel you gave me."

"But that was for Sunday school!"

"Well," replied the boy, "I didn't need it. The minister met me at the door and got me in free."—Rochester Times.

CLEVELAND—If a canary Jack Bressler is charged with borrowing is a "rag time singer," he'll be acquitted, but if he sings classical songs as Mrs. Mary Toth, who claims to be the rightful owner, maintains it does, she can recover it on replevin proceedings, Police Judge White ruled today.

MRS. EDMONDS' FUNERAL.

Funeral services for Mrs. Anna Edmonds, widow of the late E. E. Edmonds, who died at her home at 416 East North street, yesterday forenoon, will be held on Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the late residence. Interment will be at Woodlawn.

SNOTHERED IN OATS.

MANSFIELD, O., Aug. 26.—Carl Davis, 20, of Ashland, a farmhand, was smothered to death last Friday, near Hayesville, when a mow of unthreshed oats gave way burying him. Conrad Fox, 37, owner of the barn, had his right arm fractured and his breast bone broken.

WRECK BLOCKS TRAFFIC.

INFANTILE PLAGUE DROPS.

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—The number of new cases of infantile paralysis took another drop today but the deaths were three more than yesterday. The number of new cases reported today was 91 compared to 94 yesterday and the deaths 25.

PULLMAN INVADERS OHIO.

CHICAGO, Aug. 26.—The Pullman company will shortly begin the erection at Mingo, Ohio, of a branch plant for the construction of steel cars. Two hundred acres of land have been purchased for the site at a cost of $200,000. Employment will be given to 5,000 workers.

CHEEKY JOHN FOSTER.

In "William Harrison Ainsworth and His Friends" the author, S. M. Ellis, tells a quaint story of Ainsworth and his friend John Foster. Ainsworth had discovered a fine set of Hogarth's engravings which was held at $5, a sum which he said, "I could not just then spare or at least did not think I ought to spare. I took John Foster down to see the Hogarth's, whereupon he actually said that he would and must have them himself, and as he had not $5 of loose money at that moment I should lend that sum to him. I pointed out the absurdity of the proposition—that I wanted the engravings for myself, and could not afford to lay out the money; how, then, could I lend it to him? It was of no use. He overruled me, had the $5 of me and bought the Hogarth's I was longing for."

RAILWAY SITUATION DELAYS MOVEMENT OF OHIO MILITIA

Col. Gale and Major Harley of Second Regiment, Home Today.

Lieut. Col. Gale and Major John Harley, both officers of the Second regiment encamped at Camp Willis, were visitors in the city today. Both looked healthy from the outdoor life to which they are subjected. The avoirdupois characteristic to the two officers, however, has been reduced by the stringent exercise in camp duties.

"Although it is not commonly known," said Gale, "the only thing that is holding the national guard in camp at Columbus is the strike situation which the president is facing just now."

"Everything with the exception of a few supplies has been distributed to the troops in anticipation of the move to the Mexican border. If the order should come to move it could be complied with inside of a few hours."

"Even the route that the guard will take has been selected. Arrangements have been made with the Big Four railroad to furnish rolling stock for moving the troops to Cincinnati. From there the Queen and Crescent will transport them to New Orleans."

"However, from there on the movement of the troops remains a secret. It is hardly possible that the destination of the body of men will be known until after their arrival in New Orleans."

According to Gale the lack of supplies is still a big handicap toward working the men assembled in camp. He states that about 200 men are barefoot, or practically so. Although the war department claims to have placed large orders for this part of equipment, they are having trouble getting them.

Officers at Camp Willis are of the opinion that no order will be given toward the movement of the national guard camps through the United States until a satisfactory settlement of the strike is made.

SIMPSON DEMANDS ALL WEEDS BE CUT

Mayor B. H. Simpson stated today that unless persons violating the weed ordinance complied immediately to his demand that they be cut, they would be prosecuted to the full extent of the law.

Complaints were made to the head of the city administration all morning in regard to uncut weeds the size of trees being allowed to grow on lots in different parts of the city. Some violators have been warned before to heed the law, but have failed to comply with it.

Simpson stated this morning that they are not only a menace to public health, but are unsightly in appearance and detract from the beauty of the well kept lawns and properties which they happen to surround.

Miss Flossie Grainger, who will teach this year in Monroe township, came from her home in Columbus Grove to attend the sessions of the Allen County Teachers' institute.

SHEFFINGTON WIDOW TELLS OF TRAGEDY

DUBLIN, Aug. 26.—Mrs. F. Sheehy Skeffington, was the first witness today when the government investigation of the shooting of F. Sheehy Skeffington, Fred MacIntyre and Thomas Dickson was resumed today. She denied that there had ever been a Sinn-Fein uniform in her home, but admitted that there was a German flag in the house. Skeffington was arrested at the time of the Dublin uprising and shot without trial. Another witness Mrs. F. Kettle, sister of Skeffington, told of an attempt made by her sister and herself to obtain information concerning Skeffington's fate at Porto Bello barracks, but both were placed under arrest and conducted to the orderly room under an armed guard. An officer said to them: "We have evidence that you are Sinn-Feiners and that you have been seen talking to others."

COLUMBUS—Ada Kenneon, hospital nurse, was instantly killed when she sought to play a joke on an elevator operator by jumping into the car when he was not looking. The girl was crushed when the elevator was suddenly started.

MATRIMONIAL TIES SEVERED BY COURT

Mrs. Anna George was given a divorce by Judge Klinger in common pleas court today from John E. George, who was not in court. Gross neglect of duty was the grounds on which the decree was given. The plaintiff was assessed the court costs, and she was restored to her former name.

Mrs. Bertha M. Court was yesterday afternoon given alimony in the sum of $5,000, against Samuel T. Court, and the same was made a lien on his real estate. Court did not appear to contest the case. A few days ago he made an assignment of the stock and fixtures of his bicycle and repair shop in North Main street, including also an Inter-State automobile. The Courts have been living on West Market street.

Mrs. Mabel C. Hooker yesterday afternoon asked for divorce from William R. Hooker, to whom she was married in Kossuth, Ohio, on August 9, 1904. Among the many charges made is that Hooker brought women to their home for immoral purposes while she was absent. For three years he has been habitually drunk, Mrs. Hooker says. He is a saloonist at 241 South Main street.

Mrs. Hooker asked for and was granted an injunction, preventing Hooker from selling, disposing of or incurring any of his property, which, she says, includes the saloon and fixtures, valued at $2,000; a Paige automobile, at $1,500, $2,000 in bank and a property on Murphy street, valued at $300. That he threatened to kill her and often locked her out of the house, she claims. She wants her name of Mabel C. Hydaker restored.

TRAFFIC VIOLATORS SCOLDED IN COURT

Eleven more traffic violators were added to the list yesterday making a total of 23 in two days. Most of the offenses are parking in the safety zone, running with mufflers wide open and lights undimmed. One "speeder's" case was continued until a later date. The rest when arraigned in criminal court this morning were dismissed with the understanding that on their second offense they will be fined.

A new platform has been purchased which the traffic officer at the corner of High and Main streets will occupy.

FRIENDS ARRANGE BENEFIT FOR SICK GIRL MONDAY EVE

Grace Connell, who lives with her mother on South Main street, is to be made very happy. Through the efforts of a band of charitably-inclined women of the city and those who wish to do for others not so fortunate on life's highway, they have arranged a benefit for this sick girl, to be held on next Monday evening at the Majestic theater on South Main street.

They have secured the aid of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, No. 2, and very interesting pictures and themes will be shown that night. The manager of the Majestic will award 75 per cent of the proceeds that night to Miss Connell. Members of the order and this little band of women are selling the tickets and they have been highly successful.

Miss Connell, although 20, is but a slip of a girl. She worked at the box factory until taken ill. She is stricken in much the same way as eight children of her family who died. Physicians say her condition is critical. The poor mother, who is a widow, needs every penny she can get.

If you go to the Majestic on next Monday evening, you will be adding your little mite. You will help in relief for a poor, sick girl, who for some months has been suffering from a complication of diseases.

Buy a ticket, if you can't go. Employees of the Buckeye Pipe Line company, in their general offices on West North street, have purchased over 60 tickets to aid. Others are doing likewise. Tickets may be secured at the homes of Mrs. W. G. Graham, of 347 South Cole street, and Mrs. Ernest Mitchell of 548 West Market street, or at the Breslin Tailoring establishment across from the theater.

BILL DRAFTING CONFERENCE TO MEET IN CHICAGO

Bad Legislation Through
to be Corrected.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Aug. 26.—John A. Lapp, member of the executive in charge, announces that the first annual bill-drafting conference will be held in Chicago, August 29, in connection with the meeting of the American Bar Association. Mr. Lapp, who is director of the Indiana bureau of legislative information, is associated with the following in arranging for the Chicago conference: George S. Godard, Connecticut; Thomas L. Parkinson, New York; Miles C. Riley, Wisconsin; and A. B. Sheldon, Nebraska. At a meeting in Washington last December the bill-drafting conference was organized. Its purpose is to propose some arrangement whereby members of state legislatures may learn how to draft bills properly so that these bills, if enacted into law, will square with the constitution, and will not be set aside because of technical defects. The idea is of national interest because of circumstances leading up to the present condition.

About 10 years ago Dr. Charles McCarthy, of Madison, Wis., apprehended the need for information in the drafting of bills. A movement was begun, as a result of which, in several states, bureaus of legislative information have been established. There is one such in Indiana. To these bureaus legislators are privileged to apply for information on a given topic. The facts thus obtained may be utilized in proposing new laws or amending old ones. The benefits of such dissemination of truth are apparent.

But this improvement has developed another fault, that of defective bill drafting. In some European countries, where legislative initiative rests with the government, standardization is not difficult. It is different in the American states, however, as initiative and enactment into law must always rest with the representatives of the people. Under our conception of government this is as it should be. But it not infrequently happens that legislators do not know how to draft bills properly. "It has been estimated," says Mr. Lapp, "that about 25 per cent of the statutes declared unconstitutional by American courts, have met their fate by reason of formal defects. The number of adverse decisions indicates that bills do not always receive the scrutiny which they ought to have, and with few exceptions American legislative bodies have in the past made no systematic provisions to avoid failures of this kind. The preparation of bills in this country is a haphazard and extremely irresponsible business."

Therefore it is proposed to devise an arrangement whereby legislators can acquaint themselves with technique as well as facts. "The movement," explains Mr. Lapp, "must be inaugurated and maintained by the voluntary action of the houses, and it must adjust itself to the opinions, prejudices and idiosyncrasies of a large and frequently not too well disciplined membership very jealous of its prerogatives."

"The formation of this new association," says Mr. Lapp, "calls attention to the rapid spread of the movement for extending to the formal side of law making the type of expert service with which we are gradually becoming familiar in other phases of government and administration. The drafting of bills relates to the formal side of legislation and is generally and justly considered the job of a drafting expert. So far as there are established rules of bill drafting they fall within the province of legal science."

ENTRANCE EXAMINATIONS

Examinations will be given Tuesday morning, August 29, at 8 o'clock, at the High School Building, to high school pupils who took the summer school work and to eighth grade pupils who were assigned subjects for removing conditions during the summer vacation and who present certificates from the instructor showing that they have completed the work assigned.

All pupils who will attend high school are requested to call at the principal's office on Wednesday, Thursday or Friday next week to arrange schedule.

FIGHTING FOR AN EMPIRE IN GERMAN EAST AFRICA

LONDON, Aug. 25.—Major J. C. Wedgwood, a member of parliament, has just returned after spending six months on the staff of General Smuts, who is slowly but surely throttling resistance in East Africa, Germany's last colony. Writing in a London newspaper he says the former Boer general has wonderful gifts for the peculiar kinds of warfare which must be waged in this vast land, an undeveloped empire of magnificent possibilities.

"The particular feature of General Smut's tactics is their success," Major Wedgwood says. "His remarkable enveloping movements invariably achieve their object, and one realizes how invaluable in this part of the world is the experience of the Boer cavalry. To his knowledge of local conditions and the way to deal with them he adds absolute secrecy to his plans. No one but himself knows what he proposes to do until the last moment. Such a general would be the despair of the most skillful espionage system in the world."

"General Smuts does not spare himself in the field, and to see him up at the front is to be afforded a revelation of his energy. One would have smiled to see him pushing his motor car whenever it got stuck in the mud or in some morass. Like the troops he lives on dried meat."

"In appearance he is short, thick-set, with an imperial beard and shrewd eyes. He suggests the lawyer rather than the field commander, though he is both. One remembers he was attorney-general at 28. Speaking English perfectly, one is only just made aware that he is not an Englishman."

"The only idea of the Germans seems to be to hold out as long as possible, but we have already won the settled portions of the colony, which is the area where Wilhelmstal is situated."

"It is hardly possible to convey any idea of the difficulties of campaigning in an enormous country like German East Africa, where there are no roads and where the bush is so dense that two armies can pass without one being aware of the other's presence."

"Then, again, there are objections of fighting in a zoological garden with a prowling lion or some other wild beast of prey to dispute a water hole with your sentry. Transport is frightfully hard to arrange. Motor transport is always liable to break down, which is understandable, seeing that every road has to be made and reliance to a large extent has to be placed on native carriers, but the genius of Smuts continues to overcome all handicaps and food and other supplies do somehow manage to reach the troops."

"Part of General Smut's advance has been marked by the building of a light railway, carried forward at the rate of two miles a day. The ground offers little resistance to heavy loads and the rails gradually sing until they become embedded in a sort of cutting. I have seen a train crawl along for a mile or two and then stop while the men got out and cut some grass to put underneath the sleepers (ties) to prop them up."

"Though the task of discovering the enemy owing to the thick bush is a tremendous business, we contrive to locate him and it is a case all the time of forcing him back. The decisive battle, to my mind, was the battle of Latema, that was fought through the night. By winning this battle General Smuts placed the issue of the campaign beyond doubt."

"Smuts has a great sense of humor—his stories, told half in Dutch and half in English, are delightfully quaint—and what particularly amused him was to find out that Germans, concluding from the 12 hours' fighting that the battle was turning in their favor, decided they had won a great victory to be appropriately celebrated by a champagne banquet in Moshil fort. The next evening we were in the fort."

"I suppose it would be right to call General Smut's staff the most remarkable of any of our war staffs, including as it does representatives of the most vigorous fighting Boer element. The commander of one of the regiments, for instance, is the son of the man who captured Mafjaba Hill, Colonel Ben Smith, so marvellous are the transformations wrought by time."

VOCATION COURSE IN HIGH SCHOOLS IS PLAN OF U. S.

Bill to Give Federal Aid to Training for Work Passes
Senate; Up to House.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—Uncle Sam will put a vocational training course in every high school in the country if a bill that has just passed the senate also passes the house. Indications today are that the bill will become a law.

The bill was introduced at the same time in both houses by Senator Hoke Smith and Representative Hughes, both of Georgia. It is an elaboration of the federal aid system by which the government annually contributes nearly $100,000 to each state for the maintenance of agricultural colleges and experimental stations, as well as $4,100,000 to carry on the rural extension system of vocational instruction for farmers.

The proposed law is the result of a steadily growing conviction that the prospective farmer, or, nowadays, scientific agriculturalist, should be extended the opportunities of an agricultural schooling at an early age and not be compelled to attend the agricultural college for the rudiments of his trade.

It has been felt that a large proportion of boys destined to make their living from the soil are unable to afford a college education and need high school credits for college entrance now.

To standardize and nationalize the high school aid work the Smith-Hughes bill provides that the United States shall share in the payment of salaries to state teachers, inspectors and directors in state high schools. It also provides for a federal board of vocational education.

This board, which would consist of the United States commissioner of education as chairman and four members to be appointed (not more than two from any political party) by the president. This board and state educational authorities would co-operate in outlining courses.

The states relations service of the department of agriculture has pursued the system still further by preparing a comprehensive system of courses in agriculture. These have been offered to the states for use in their grammar schools, in the rural districts.

Alabama, Mississippi, Wisconsin, Maryland and Vermont have installed the course in all their elementary schools since the initiation of the plan a year or so ago.

CENSOR NOTES HE ISN'T FOOL AT ALL

Discovers Device of Officer to Let Wife Know His Whereabouts.

LONDON, Aug. 26.—"The censor is not the d— fool you take him to be."

This line was penned by a British censor on a letter from an officer at the front to his wife, in which a ingenious code was discovered. It meant to disclose where the husband was fighting, but it was spoiled by the censor and an order was issued prohibiting such practices.

Before the officer who wrote the letter left for the front, he got two maps showing the entire British fighting line. The maps were identical. One he left with his wife and the other he took with him.

Thereafter, each time he wrote a letter, he placed the stationery on his map, stuck a pin through it directly over Paris, another directly over Brussels, and a third at the point where he was stationed.

On receiving the letter, his wife would place it over her map, adjusting the pinholes over Paris and Brussels, and her husband's whereabouts would be indicated by the middle hole.

This is one of a score of codes discovered by censors. England does not censure relatives of men at the front for wanting to know the locality in which they are fighting, but such disclosures become a menace.

WE ARE GOING OUT OF BUSINESS

The Home Builders' Realty Company is going out of the Home Building business, and in order to close up our affairs quickly, we are going to dispose of the properties we have left at a sacrifice.

Your Last Opportunity

This is your last opportunity to buy one of those Honor Built Homes for which our Company has become famous.

Eleven Hundred Homes

We have built over eleven hundred homes in Lima.

Eight hundred of them have been sold on easy terms, many of them to people who would have never owned a home but for our easy payment plan.

We have seven new modern homes on Hazel Avenue in the San Felice Addition that were built to sell for from $3,000 to $3,500. These homes have five and six rooms, each and are complete with furnaces, baths and hardwood floors. They are all new and tasty designs. In order to move them quickly, the prices have been reduced to $2,600 to $3,000, and will be sold for ten per cent cash and the balance in easy monthly installments.

We have three new bungalows on O'Connor Avenue, all complete with baths and hardwood finish and floors. Built to sell for $3,000 each, but we have cut the price to $2,600.00.

We have a few homes in West Lima that are modern and right up-to-date, which we will sell at a big reduction in price.

JEAN COURT

We have five of those tasty bungalows left in Jean Court. They all have hardwood floors and finish, furnaces, baths with tile floors and tile side walls, fireplaces with built-in bookcases. These bungalows are complete even to the window blinds and curtain rods. The lots are 40x100 feet. Improvements are all paid for. Buyers who want every convenience in compact form and who want to be free from the servant problem, will find just what they are looking for in Jean Court.

The prices run from $4,250 to $6,000, which are from $500 to $1,000 less than you could buy the ground and duplicate the buildings for. These homes will be sold for $500 cash and the balance easy.

We have a few homes in South Lima which we will sell below cost—ask about them.

Vacant Lots

We have twenty-one vacant lots scattered around in different parts of Lima. We will build no more homes, so have no use for the lots.

If you want to buy a vacant lot, ask about these. We will sell them at bargain prices.

We have many homes other than those mentioned.

If you have any idea of buying a home, don't miss this opportunity to secure one at a saving of from $300 to $500.

Weddings Without Love
Famous Writer Gives Some Advice to a Girl Who Asks Her Opinion.
By Dorothy Dix.
A YOUNG girl asked my advice the other day about whether she should marry a certain man who had asked her to be his wife.
"Well, then, let mother marry him," said I. "Don't you do it, for if you marry a man you don't love you will be miserable ever after, no matter if he is a saint and a millionaire combined."
A woman's affections are the medium through which she looks on life. If she does not love him her husband cannot please her, though he were a model of all the virtues.
If, on the other hand, she loves the man who shares it with her, she can be perfectly content in a two by four flat. She can prefer doing her own cooking to going to balls, and be blind as a bat at weaknesses at which all the world jeers.
For this reason no woman should ever marry unless she is wildly, frantically, madly in love. A man may marry a woman for whom he has only a mild and lukewarm regard and get along in reasonable comfort, because after marriage love is only a side issue with him, anyway.
The Masculine Code.
Besides, the masculine code teaches a man not to wince, and when he makes a bad bargain to stick to it, so the indifferent husband is not infrequently a fairly comfortable one to live with.
But women are notoriously poor losers, and no matter how deliberately they make it, when they find out that the marriage of convenience, or the marriage for money is a failure, they have no shame in squealing, as our sporting friends say, and thus it happens that the unloving wife is invariably a complaining and disagreeable one.
Now, no woman can live with a husband she does not love and be happy, and not one woman in a thousand has the strength of character to do her duty as a wife unless she is happy, or treat a man right not because she wants to but because she ought to.
Of course, the girl who marries a man for whom she has only a pale pink friendship decides herself by thinking that her liking will warm up into hectic love after marriage.

PUBLIC FORUM
A CAMPAIGN OF FALSHOOD AND ABUSE.
Editor, Times-Democrat:
When Mr. Hughes declared that President Wilson was responsible for the attempted destruction of munition plants in the United States it was not an unreasonable inference or a supposed masculine callings but the campaign on the part of the republican leaders would be one of abuse and falsehood.
Mr. Hughes and many of his chief supporters—many some highly honorable exceptions—sounded the keynote that was to be intoned by the republican spellbinders until the 11th of November. He accuses the president of having declared war on Mexico. He knows the chief executive has no constitutional authority to declare war on any nation. That is, the function of congress. Professor Schurman of Cornell university repeats the accusation.
The sending of war ships to Vera Cruz and the landing of marines was not an act of war. The United States sent battleships to China during the boxer uprising fifteen years ago; so did Great Britain and Germany. President McKinley was not censured nor accused of declaring war on China.
It has often been said that politics in a dirty pool. The political leaders who for a partisan purpose attempt to mislead the people depend on their ability to corrupt public opinion for success. Judge Hughes and Prof. Schurman discredit themselves by such performances.

HEALTHHINTS
SIMPLE PROCESS PROTECTS CHILD AGAINST PLACER
In many diseases physicians can produce immunity at will by the injection of a vaccine or serum. This is called vaccination.
The most familiar of the vaccines is the one which is used to protect against smallpox. This disease was once the most terrible of all the maladies which afflicted mankind.
Many parents fear to have their children vaccinated and would rather run the risk of their contracting disease.
Yet there is not the slightest danger in the process of vaccination when it is carried out with fresh clean virus, now guaranteed by government inspection, and when the vaccination is kept clean.
"Sore arms," which so alarm many mothers come from getting dirt into the vaccination, and not from the vaccine which has been injected into the system.
Effect Wears Off.
The protective effect of vaccination wears off after a time. Every child should be vaccinated when about one year old and again at the age of seven.
This last is more important, for then the child must mingle with hundreds of others at school and be exposed to hidden infection.
One of the most successful vaccines discovered in recent years is that used to protect people against typhoid fever. The use of this vaccine has practically eliminated typhoid fever from the United States.

OWN Mexican policy would be. He makes boastful professions about his devotion to "America First," but encourages the German voice to support him in refusing to yield to the Kaiser. He accuses the president of "vaccination and timidity" in dealing with the gravest national and international problems with which any other president except Lincoln has had to grapple, but he lacks the moral and political courage to say how he would meet the situation.
In the midst of the greatest crisis known to modern history the most important issues in Mr. Hughes' mind are the substitution of a Democratic director of the census for a Republican director of the census, the appointment of a son of Battery Dan Finn to a place in the customs service and the failure of the president occupied with matters of the first magnitude to keep all the petty pork out of a river and harbor bill. It is like abusing Abraham Lincoln because he did not better paved during the Civil war and declaring that in consequence his administration was a failure.
In 1908 there was a ring of sincerity in the Hughes speeches and a fervor of conviction. There is neither sincerity nor conviction in the Hughes speeches of 1914. But the Hughes of 1908 was not 100 per cent a candidate for office. He was 100 per cent a leader of the people of New York, irresistible in party, to re-establish the government. The Hughes of 1914 is not 100 per cent a leader or 100 per cent a candidate. He is trying to pussyfoot into the presidency under the guidance of the Old Guard Republicans. He takes his political advice from them, just as he takes his campaign fund from Wall Street. He takes his campaign information from them. He makes the kind of speeches that they tell him he ought to make. They warn him not to try to present constructive policies of his own lest he be compelled to defend them, and he obeys. That is the Hughes of 1914. That is the 100 per cent candidate who is assailing the 100 per cent president.
The "World" is frank to admit that it finds no cause for elation in the Hughes dance. It contains too many of the elements of a political tragedy.
As an enthusiastic supporter of President Wilson "The World" favored Mr. Hughes' nomination by the Republicans, believing that his candidacy would mean a campaign of education for the American voters. We were certain that he would put the issues upon the highest plane of statesmanship, and that the contest would be a contest of two great statesmen, differing as to method and policy, but each courageous, single-minded and unswerving in his conscientious devotion to principle and duty. Instead, Mr. Hughes has pitched his campaign in the lowest key of partisanship and is appealing only to party prejudice and party passion. Instead of being the Republican candidate for president he might be a Republican candidate for assemblyman.
The "World" cannot rejoice at the exhibition that Mr. Hughes is making of himself. This country always needs wise, sagacious political leadership. It needs it in both parties. It needs a Republican who can do for the Republican party what President Wilson has done for the Democratic party. It needs men who are 100 per cent leaders of political thought and political principle, and we need to regard Mr. Hughes as such a man. To discover that he is only 100 per cent office-seeker, and that he is ready to subordinate everything else to that ambition, brings to "The World" a sense of keen personal loss.
We feel that something very fine very inspiring has gone out of the public life of the United States. We feel that the American people are poorer because a Hughes who was once 100 per cent a judge has turned his back upon his record and his traditions in order to become a Hughes who is merely 100 per cent a candidate.

Wallis' chief tax commissioner in the state, James Boyle, resigned under fire. Wallis may "reward" him for "martyring" himself. The question is who will reward Wallis after November. Hard thing will have to find something at Washington.
Mr. Hughes did not register or vote for Votes for Women when the issue was posed on his own state. It is a case to look with suspicion upon a campaign which has so strong a taint of expediency.
There is no record of Mr. Hughes having voted in the last presidential election. To his intents and purposes, therefore he was as much for Mr. Wilson as he was for Mr. Taft or Mr. Roosevelt.
Maybe it is not the fault of the Republican managers that former Ambassador Henry Lane Wilson is in the middle of the stage? He may have just put himself there. Are they afraid to kick him off?

WOMAN GRADUATE BLACKSMITH
Blacksmithing is no longer a trade. It has been developed into a skilled profession and like all other professions it is being invaded by women. The first graduate woman blacksmith on record in the world received her diploma from the Iowa State College a few weeks ago. Her name is Miss Tora Hawke and she is preparing to open a blacksmith shop of her own soon in which she will specialize in the repairing of farm machinery. During her college course she did this work successfully, standing at the forge, welding riveting and handling hot irons just as the men of her class did.

"I'm afraid he might enlist," said the lad, without batting an eyelash.

TOWNS
Which Have Tried the Experiment OFFER PLENTY OF REASONS FOR AVOIDING MUNICIPAL OWNERSHIP.
Toledo's million dollar failure is not the greatest the nation has seen, nor is it the only disaster suffered by an Ohio city venturing into municipal ownership. Note the tale of Hamilton:
The municipal gas, electric and water plants have all been disastrous failures. In 1916 a report made to the state auditor said: "The administration of the board of public service * * * is marked with evidence of mismanagement, extravagance and unbusinesslike methods." The city reports do not include interest, depreciation, lost taxes or legal expenses, and therefore purport to show a profit. In 1911 a state examiner found all three plants losing money. For 1909 the gas plant's figures were: actual revenue, $46,277.80; actual expense, $71,108.81; losses in taxes ($161,000 value, 40% of value at 3.45%), $2,221.80; loss to city, $27,052.01. The examiner says:
"Two and a half years ago the electric plant, which was built in 1903, was a complete wreck, and the figures obtained from careful examination * * * showed for the life of this plant, 15 years, a cost per arc lamp of $113.33, while other cities furnished by private plants showed a cost of from $55 to $75."
Investigations in 1914 showed that although the city has abandoned its gas plant, which is a wreck, the losses in 1913 on this service came to $40,000, while the electric plant lost $23,956.27 and the water works, $55,580.80. This means a loss of nearly $400 a day to the taxpayers on account of Hamilton's venture into municipal ownership.
If the scheme failed in Hamilton, what assurance have you that it will work in Lima? If it failed there on three utilities, why experiment here on one? Do you want efficient telephone service or a wrecked system?

TRAGEDY OF HUGHES
The following editorial, under the caption, "The Tragedy of Hughes", is from the New York "World" of August 17:
"Where is Hughes gone? The Hughes of 1908?" inquires the "Times". That is what Democrats and Republicans alike are asking themselves—the Democrats with astonishment and delight, the Republicans with bewilderment and disgust.
The Hughes that New York used to know, Hughes whom The World supported in 1906 and in 1908, has disappeared. In his place we have a Hughes of the Penrose-Cannon-Gallinger type, whose mind never rises above the petty partisanship of Republican organization politics. The speeches he is delivering in the west might be made by any ordinarily clever young Republican candidate for the state legislature.
No other candidate for president within the memory of living men ever ran downhill so rapidly as Mr. Hughes has done since the day following his nomination. It is both the campaign sensation and the campaign mystery of the country. Whether men talk politics, the one question is, "What has happened to Hughes?"
Nobody has answered that question, yet it admits of an answer—and the explanation can be found in Mr. Hughes' Chicago speech when he said, "As I was on the bench 100 per cent a judge (then became 100 per cent a candidate)."
That is where the Hughes of 1908 has gone. He has appeared in the Hughes of 1914 who, 100 per cent a candidate, the country thought the Republicans were now taking a great bluff who was still 100 per cent a judge with all that it implied—a leader who was wise, just, fair, learned, honest in all his statements upright in relation to all the great issues of the campaign and fearless in his discussion of them. Instead they suddenly find a man who has changed himself from 100 per cent a judge into a man who is an office-seeker with all the cunning, cunningness with all the cunning, with all the dodging and twisting and deliberate misrepresentation that usually characterize the 100 per cent office-seeker. Hughes the judge and statesman has been swallowed up in Hughes the candidate.
That is where the Hughes of 1908 is gone.
The Hughes of 1914 is merely a partisan aspirant for office. He is as faithful President Wilson, but he has no policies of his own. He abuses his opponent, but he offers no constructive programme. He has even forgotten the country that ought to exist between opposing candidates for president.
The Hughes of 1914 sneers at President Wilson's successful efforts to keep the country out of war with Germany, but he is afraid to say what he would have done that the president did not do, or what he would have left undone that the president did. He ridicules President Wilson's efforts to bring a new order of things out of the Mexican chaos, but he dare not say what

FEDERAL-AID ROAD ACT

Sec'y of Agriculture Discusses Features of New Law.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—At a meeting of the state highway officials, held August 16, 1916, in Washington, to discuss tentative rules and regulations for carrying out the federal-aid road act, the secretary of agriculture made the following statement:

"The federal-aid road act and another law—the co-operative agricultural extension act—that the department is charged with the duty of enforcing, establish a new principle in American government, the principle of co-operation between federal and state officers. They are the only laws I recall which recognize and insist upon this principle. They are therefore very significant. Hereafter federal and state officers have too frequently looked at one another across the line, sometimes with apprehension as to what the other was going to do or think, sometimes with jealousy, not infrequently with friction. We serve the same people. They have a right to the best service of the representatives of both jurisdictions. You represent the states. I represent the federal government. Together we are charged with the execution of a very difficult and very important law.

"I need not emphasize before you the importance of good roads. Most intelligent people who think about good roads know that they are essential to comfortable living, essential to proper community development, especially to the development of rural life, to efficient production and orderly marketing of farm products, to good schools, and to the development of a satisfactory rural life.

"Many people, however, do not appreciate this, and I have occasionally met road officers who, when the importance of good roads was emphasized, have said: 'Yes, but they cost so much.' Apparently they have not thought how much more bad roads cost, not only in dollars and cents, but also in all those indirect ways for which one can make no definite calculation.

"Large Expenditures for Roads. "This law appeals to me as of especial importance, not so much because it carries with it out of the federal treasury an appropriation of $5 millions of dollars, not because it will be met by an appropriation of $5 million or more out of state funds, but because as great as is the aggregate, it is relatively insignificant in comparison with amounts the states are now annually expending and will spend during the period covered by the act.

"I remember that, on one occasion, when I was speaking to a public official about the road bill and suggested that we ought to begin with a modest initial appropriation of three, four or five millions of dollars, he expressed surprise and said that such an amount would not get us anywhere; that the expenditure by the nation of a few millions of dollars for roads would be merely trifling with the matter. I asked him if he knew what the people of the nation were contributing annually for road building, that the nation was already expending the equivalent of nearly half of what the Panama Canal has cost. Of course he did not. And the majority of people do not realize that the nation is expending approximately $250,000,000 a year for roads.

Results for Money Expended. "The main question that I am immediately concerned with, that the people of the nation are immediately concerned with, is whether we shall get a dollar's result for every dollar we expend for roads. I am quite sure that if we do so and we can convince the people that we have done so, they will be willing to put much more money into good roads where they are needed. Therefore, the matter of administering this law, of devising good road systems, of careful selection of roads, of formulating projects, of having all matters considered on their merit by competent men, seem to me to lie at the root of this business. If, as the result of this act, the people are induced fully to realize the necessity of placing skillful and experienced men in charge of road building and road maintenance, a great advance will have been made and the efforts of those who labored to secure the legislation will have been rewarded.

Employment of Experts. "I assume, as a matter of necessity, that this law will require the employment in every state of experts, of real experts. This word is very much misused and abused, as the word 'theorist' is. I frequently hear a contrast drawn between the theorists and the practical men. There is no basis for it. The classification ought to be into good theorists and bad theorists, of practical men and impractical men. A really good theorist is highly practical; and so is a real expert. The public is somewhat suspicious of experts, because, I think, so many people pose as experts who are not. When the public sets an expert aside, it is worth while to inquire carefully into the expert's claims and competency.

"I repeat that this act will necessitate trained intelligence in the service of the state as well as in the service of the federal government. The act requires the state to accept it. That, as I understand it, implies the assent of the state to every provision of the act. One of these provisions is that projects, plans, specifications and contracts shall be submitted and approved; and I have a suspicion that plans and specifications will not be approved unless they are ted by people who know about such things. So the assent of the state involves the calling of trained men into the service of every state which is now without them.

"The law involves another thing, the pledge of the faith of the state to meet in full federal appropriation for the entire period covered by the act. The state legislature may not be able to appropriate money for a year for the whole period covered by the act, but it can pledge the faith of the state to meet the financial provisions of the act for the period covered by it. This is as it should be. It would be unfortunate if it were otherwise. It would be wasteful not to make plans at the outset for the full period covered by the act; it would mean piecemeal road building and much dissipation of effort and misdirection of funds. These requirements hold whether the state is such, under the existing law, may engage in road building or not. The provision that where the state may not engage in highway improvement the money may be secured if counties raise an amount sufficient to meet the apportionment to the state, involves the necessity on the part of such counties of raising an amount sufficient to meet the full apportionment for the state, the existence of a highway commission, and compliance with all the other terms of the act. I speak of this because there are evidences that individual counties think that, if they raise a certain sum of money, they will of necessity get a corresponding sum from the federal treasury. That is not my construction of the act and not the one that will be likely to prevail.

"The duty will rest upon you gentlemen who represent the states of informing the people as to the meaning of this legislation and as to the procedure under it, because the initiative under the law lies with you. We are directed to cooperate with you, with states through state highway departments. It is your duty, if your state accepts the law, to agree with us on roads to be constructed and to submit projects, plans, and specifications. Therefore, individuals, associations, and counties will of necessity take up such matters directly with you, and we shall hear from them through you for the most part.

National Forests Roads and Trails. "There is a section of the act which contemplates only parts of the country. The nation owns great areas, especially in our western states, and is acquiring areas in certain others of our states. The nation owes a duty to the people living in the national forests or near them. In many instances communities struggling for development have been compelled to rely too exclusively for necessary improvement on the taxes from private property, or on private contributions. It is true that under the law we have heretofore been setting aside for road improvement 10 per cent of the gross receipts from the forests. This has been no inconsiderable sum, nearly three-quarters of a million dollars since the act was passed, and approximately $278,000 for the present fiscal year. But in some sections there are no receipts from the forests and communities have been left to struggle as best they could. The government in many instances is the owner of the greater part of these assets, and it is only equitable and wise that the federal government should assist them. So there is appropriated by the act $10,000,000, a million a year for 10 years, for the construction of roads and trails in or near the national forests, with the understanding that communities interested will cooperate financially and otherwise. Those of you who represent forest states, as a matter of course, will think of coordinating work under your direct state road funds and those arising under the general provisions of the road act with the work to be undertaken under this special appropriation.

Legislation to Aid Distribution. "I am hopeful that great benefit will accrue to the nation from the wise and efficient administration of this act. It is one of a series of measures recently conceived and enacted for the development of rural life. We began by formulating a law on similar lines, the co-operative agricultural extension act. We then enacted the cotton futures law to give the cotton farmers and dealers standards to trade on and to secure supervision of the operations on futures exchanges, a similar law to establish standards for grains and commerce in them, and the warehouse bill for the better storage of staple crops and for the emission of a warehouse receipt which would be good collateral for loans. We have given an opportunity to the national banks to lend funds on farm mortgages, and have extended the period of maturity for farm paper and adopted the federal farm loan act. All these lie in the field of distribution as does this road act, which lies at the foundation of satisfactory and orderly marketing.

Attitude of Agriculture Dept. "I have come here today mainly to meet you and to express my appreciation of the very ready response you have made to the request of the department to give it information and the benefit of your experience in framing the rules and regulations for the administration of the federal aid road act. I am a very great believer in cooperation, and I think one saves much trouble by beginning to cooperate at the outset.

"I appreciate the keen interest you have shown in the shaping and developing of this legislation. I shall do everything in my power to facilitate your tasks, to aid you in the discharge of them so far as the powers of the department permit, whether through this law or through the direct appropriations to the office of public roads. I ask your full, generous and efficient cooperation. If

BACKACHE IS DISCOURAGING.
But Not So Bad if You Know How to Reach the Cause.

Nothing more discouraging than a constant backache. Lame when you awaken, pains pierce you when you bend or lift. It's hard to work or to rest. Backache often indicates bad kidneys. Lima people recommend Doan's Kidney Pills. Read this case:

Mrs. J. A. McCormick, 513 Ea North street, Lima, says: "I had a dull ache across the small of my back. After sitting down, I had to grasp something to get up. I had neglected my kidneys and they began to cause me annoyance. After using Doan's Kidney Pills about two weeks, all trouble went away. My little grand daughter also had distressing weakness of the kidneys. She had no control over the kidney secretions, especially at night. Doan's Kidney Pills removed the trouble and it hasn't returned."

The Week In Society

MARIE N. NAGLE

ONCE, many years ago, it seems, there was a time when Society fled from her capitol, and took herself into solitude, and rest, where there was neither dance nor bridge, nor yet reception. All was tranquil, in this spot to which the fickle lady fled. Here in the course of a month or six weeks, she chased the tired look out of her eyes, rested her aching feet, and slowly, but surely, acquired an appetite for the winter whirl of pleasure. Then, but not until then, did she return.

But that was many years ago, or better, many seasons ago. Now there can be no time when the appetite appears jaded, for Society sets her pace in January and stops in December, only to begin again in January. No one has time to rest if one would keep up to the standard set by her mistress. Lima society has taken no rest, not even when one thought she would. From the tea, to the bridge party, to the luncheon, to the reception, to the dance, to the dinner, she has kept the summer an unusually gay one, and as for her winter plans, who can say? If we might judge from summer precedent, we could say that only the superlative degree of gay could be applied.

told that George Washington once lived there, instinctively said, "Which floor?" A New York lad would have done the same, perhaps even more quickly. For there the ratio of apartment buildings to single houses is higher than in Boston. In Philadelphia it is much lower. "But the Boston boy should have known that George Washington was rich enough to have a house to himself," it may be said. It is true, and that was one way that wealth disclosed itself formerly. But it does not today. Millionaires live in "parts" of houses now. The ideal of having a separate establishment apparently is passing.

Ethel Discovers That She Has Been Very Extravagant in the Purchase of Food.

"IN THESE days of high prices, you must not only know how to cook, but you must learn to manage." Ethel sat by the kitchen table, pencil in hand, making a menu for a week. "I believe in the budget system."

"Budget? I do not understand." Ethel's forehead had a thoughtful pucker.

"I suppose you do not know anything about governments. It is a mistake. Women should keep themselves informed about all the affairs that interest men. How else are they to be companions to their husbands? A budget is a sum set aside for a certain purpose. You will never get anywhere saving till you decide what would be a reasonable amount to spend on food and clothing, etc. Then make your expenses come inside of that amount."

"How can you? You must eat." The girl's eyes were wide with astonishment.

"That is where management counts. Everything does not cost the same. Choose things that will make your meals come within the price set." The old head nodded her emphasis.

"What do you think is a reasonable amount?"

"I have never kept house in town and there are so many things that a farmer produces on the place that my budget would not be of any help to you, but Nell has studied this question. She has become quite a manager. She says their expenses average two dollars a week apiece for each person."

"Do you mean for everything?" queried the girl.

"All table expenses. Of course that does not include any fuel."

"Why, that would be only $16 a month for food for Ralph and me." The voice was full of astonishment. "Our meat bill alone was as big as that sometimes and our grocery bill ran around thirty dollars."

He had been in ill health for some time, and was accompanied by Mrs. Martha McCluskey, a nurse, who occupied an adjoining room. A note addressed to her was found in the priest's room.

DANIELS ADDRESSES CAMP MEETING ON PRESIDENT'S POLICY

Shows How Wilson Has Kept United States
Out of Conflict.

JACKSONVILLE, Me., Aug. 26.—Secretary of the Navy Josephus Daniels in a speech to those attending the Methodist camp meeting here today defended President Wilson's course regarding Germany, Mexico and preparedness. He said all Americans owed the president a lasting debt for keeping America out of war.

"It is the easiest thing in the world," he said, "for an executive to so act as to plunge his country into war. But it requires statesmanship to steer the ship of state through turbulent waters and whirlpools on its fixed course. In these days of crisis an executive would have sent the craft upon the rocks. A captain, fond of excitement and thoughtless of the consequences, would have steered the ship into the boiling seas, cleared the deck for action, and precipitated the vessel into participation in the struggle."

"For two years the American people have been tense in their interest, hopeful that their president would continue to be a safe pilot and Christian men and women have prayed that he might be guided by the Ruler of the Universe, so that, without sacrifice of American rights, peace might reign on this continent."

Secretary Daniels talked to his Methodist associates upon the history of their church, militant for righteousness, praised by Lincoln for sending the largest quota of troops to the army of Grant, but declared they stood with Bishop Cranston in praying to keep this nation out of the European embroilment. He dwelt upon the havoc, tragedy and disastrous consequence of war, and declared it would be a crime for any chief executive to plunge the nation into war when its rights could be maintained by firm diplomacy.

"When Lincoln faced problems not more difficult than have confronted Wilson for two years, he cautioned the people in his homely philosophy not to swap horses crossing the stream," said Mr. Daniels. "For Wilson's re-election the same argument is being made by peace-loving democrats, republicans, and progressives in every part of the country. And Christian men are praying that the same pilot will be kept at the wheel four years more."

"We are not a belligerent nation. We wish that every country would join us in submitting all controversies to arbitration. The thirty peace treaties express the aspirations of the people of this country hold. There must be an international tribunal to hear and settle international differences."

once with power to enforce its decrees.

"No matter how peaceably inclined America is, as long as there are powerful nations covetous to bestride the earth our only safety is preparedness. Preparedness is far removed from militarism which course must never afflict our land."

"I am ambitious that my country shall have a strong and powerful navy. I must have nothing else while other nations are armed, but I hope the day is near at hand when international arbitration with power to enforce its decrees will make it unnecessary to impose a tax of three-quarters of a billion dollars for the army and navy. WANT WORKERS' HEALTH INSURED

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—Health insurance legislation recently strongly recommended for America by the United States health service, and now the subject of investigation by official commissions in the states of Massachusetts and California, is the sole topic of the summer number of The American Labor Legislation Review, just issued from its New York headquarters by the American Association for Labor Legislation.

A model bill has been drafted by a special committee, formed for the purpose by the association, and consisting of such well-known authorities as Prof. Irving Fisher, Yale university, Dr. Alexander Lambert, the American Medical association; Dr. Henry J. Harris, library of congress, and Miss Lillian D. Wald, president of the National Organization for the Public Nursing.

The model bill provides for the insurance of those earning less than $100 a month at the joint expense of the employer and the employee and the state. The sick workman is to receive a weekly cash benefit equal to two-thirds of wages for a maximum of 26 weeks in a year, medical care for himself and his family and a small funeral benefit in case of death. The funds are to be under the mutual control of employers and employees. The secretary, John B. Andrews, announces that this bill will be introduced into more than 20 state legislatures next year.

Socialist Assemblyman A. L. Ship-lacoff reiterated his belief in the necessity of state health insurance. A universal health insurance system, he said, would be the best means of preventing sickness and he appealed to all those interested in the welfare of the workers to wage a campaign for the enactment of such a measure by the legislature. "I am of the opinion," continued Ship-lacoff, "that health insurance legislation is urgently needed in all states of the union. It is a lamentable fact that this country is still lagging behind Great Britain, Germany and other leading countries in this vital field of legislation."

"Recent investigations by the federal commission on industrial relations, the department of labor and the United States public health service have established the necessity for immediate legislation for the protection of the health of the wage workers of the United States."

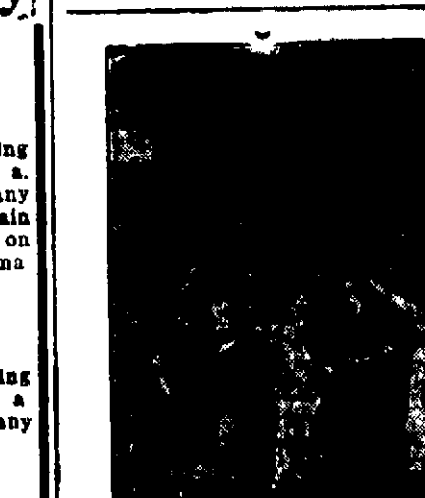

"European experience, as well as our own experience in workmen's compensation, proves that the best way to prevent sickness and accidents is by a universal system of health insurance and by workmen's compensation laws."

"It is to be hoped that everybody who has the interests of the workers at heart will lend his immediate active support toward the enactment of favorable health insurance legislation in this and other states of the union."

AMUSEMENTS

THE FAUROT PICTURES.

Mary Pickford's return to the Faurot today in Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett's celebrated play, "The Dawn of a Tomorrow", is bringing throngs of delighted patrons to that theatre. Miss Pickford's portrayal of Glad in this splendid work is ranked as one of her greatest achievements and the Famous Players have produced it in a manner that is worthy of both star and play. Although Little Mary is the center of interest, she is exceptionally supported by a sterling cast which includes such admirable artists as David Powell, Forrest Robinson, Robert Cain, Margaret Seddon and Blanche Craig. The feature is accompanied by new Paramount Pictographs, with a wealth of interesting and educational subjects, and the final "Mishap of Musty Suffer."

For Sunday and Monday the Faurot will again present Mary Pickford, but this time in her most recent success, "Hulda From Holland". The success of this new photoplay has been phenomenal all over the country even for a Mary Pickford subject. It has been stated that her Hulda is even more appealing than her Pepina. The production abounds in those homely little domestic scenes which endear a character in the eyes of the spectator, and everywhere Hulda goes she takes with her three of the most adorable little Dutch children that have ever been seen. As the title suggests the story is Dutch in its setting, the action opening in Holland and then being transferred to New York City and the Dutch settlements of Pennsylvania. Miss Pickford is supported by a cast that includes such well-known favorites as Frank Losee, Russell Bassett, John Bowers, Charles E. Vernon and Haral Hol-lach.

"Hulda From Holland" will be accompanied by a new Bray-Paramount cartoon comedy, "Bobby Bumps and the Detective Story" and the latest edition of the Pathe News. Let us suggest that you try to get to the Faurot in the afternoon on Sunday. "Hulda From Holland" has drawn record breaking attendance all over the country and the wise person will see it in the afternoon and avoid the big crowds that every night sees at the Faurot.

Wallace Reid and Cleo Ridgely, the two brilliant Lasky stars whose joint appearance in productions from that studio have been notable events on the Paramount program, will be seen at the Faurot next Tuesday and Wednesday in their latest screen success, "The House of the Golden Windows". This film drama is said to charmingly fulfill the retty promise of a film name. It is a modern version of an old fairy tale by L. V. Jefferson. The scenes are laid in the hills of California and the unusual theme gives the popular stars equal opportunity for the display of their respective dramatic gifts. The cast in their support includes James Neill, Mabel Van Buren, Horace B. Carpenter, Marge Daw and Little Billy Jacobs. Lasky is said to have given the play some magnificent effects, both in the staging and photography. This feature will be accompanied by new Burton Holmes Travels—"From Carlsbad to Moravia" and the latest edition of the Pathe News.

Mme. Olga Petrova, the distinguished emotional star of stage and screen, will be seen at the Faurot next Thursday and Friday in her new photodramatic success, "The GREAT NAVAL EXPERT.

Henry Reuter, Co-Editor of Paramount Pictographs.

The one man who has succeeded in becoming one of the highest authorities on naval matters—Henry Reuter—has co-operated with the editors of the Paramount Pictographs, the "magazine-on-the-screen" ever since its inception, bringing to the attention of the American public the grave need of naval preparedness.

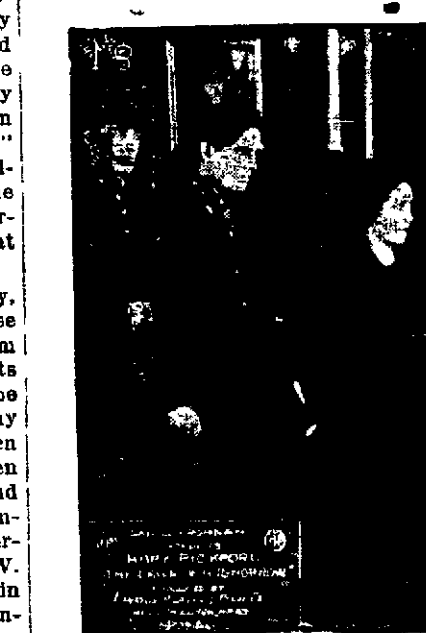

His thoughts which have been visualized on the screen have done wonders to bring the real status of naval affairs before the American public.

His thoughts which have been visualized on the screen have done wonders to bring the real status of naval affairs before the American public.

ETERNAL QUESTION. This is one of the strongest features in which the great Petrova has yet appeared. The production abounds in big effects, one being a realistic chapter made at sea when the hero gives chase in an aeroplane and overtakes an ocean liner under full steam. The heroine, played by Mme. Petrova, has been abducted and taken aboard the vessel, and her rescue is one of the most thrilling situations ever shown in motion pictures. The star is supported by a cast that includes Arthur Hoops, Mahlon Hamilton, Edward Martindel, Warren Oland, Henry Leone, Howard Messmer and Evelyn Dumo. "The Eternal Question" will be accompanied by new Paramount Pictographs, with a host of interesting subjects, and a new comedy, "Preparedness", in which Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew are seen in another humorous domestic adventure.

Beautiful and gifted Hazel Dawn, who has come to be regarded as one of Lima's foremost favorites on the screen, comes back to the Faurot next Saturday in "The Sales Lady", the unique play by William Mack in which she made such a hit last winter. There are a series of remarkable scenes in this comedy-drama. Some of them show the interior of a big New York department store, with hundreds of employees taking part in the action of the play, and others show the stage of a prominent metropolitan theatre, with Miss Dawn and the cast and chorus of one of the best known musical comedy companies acting before a big audience. There are other bits before and behind the scenes of the theatre that have hardly been approached for elaborate artistry. Irving Cummings, Dorothy Rogers, Clarence Handysides and Arthur Morrison have the important roles with

The famous comedy, "Peck's Bad Boy," has been wheeling around the country for years and everywhere it has been presented there has been but one verdict by press and public, namely, that it is one of the most entertaining and satisfying stage creations which have ever been devised. Each one of its characters is such a person as one meets every day in real life and the mixups in which the characters are pictured are just as natural as they could be.

The famous comedy, "Peck's Bad Boy," has been wheeling around the country for years and everywhere it has been presented there has been but one verdict by press and public, namely, that it is one of the most entertaining and satisfying stage creations which have ever been devised. Each one of its characters is such a person as one meets every day in real life and the mixups in which the characters are pictured are just as natural as they could be.

The show this season is a grand revival as it has been entirely reconstructed by Irving Berlin, who has turned it into a musical farce comedy, which is genuinely tuneful and pleasing.

At the Orpheum theater one day only, matinee and night, Tuesday, August 29 Reserved seat sale opens at Orpheum box office Monday morning at 9 o'clock.

BRINGING P FATHER

Defiance Will Be Attraction At Murphy Park

Defiance comes to Lima tomorrow with the best looking team that has stacked up against the locals since the invasion of the Toledo Rail Lights. Their record is almost a duplicate of the local club, having won every game this year with the exception of one, which they lost to the mighty Toledo Rail Light crew.

There are a number of well known ex-league ball tossers with the Defiance club. Grant was manager of the South Bend team of the Central league and had the reputation of sending more players to the big show than any other minor league manager. He claims credit for having developed Lima's only big league player of recent years, namely "Runt" Walsh. "Runt" was sold by South Bend to the Philadelphia National league ball club while under the management of Grant.

Spangler, the big first sacker, is also a Central league man, having played with three different clubs on that circuit. Buckholz has been seen a number of times in this city at the old San Felipe park, while playing in the Ohio State league. Henline has the reputation of being one of the best semi-pro catchers in the state and the local fans will have an opportunity of comparing his work with our star backstop, Herring, who has proven a mountain of strength

Cleveland Wins Two Ply Game

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 26.—Dad pitching and fielding enabled Cleveland to win both games from Philadelphia yesterday, 13 to 9 and 10 to 2. Nabors was taken out in the second inning of the first game on account of wildness and Williams was also wild and was hit hard. The home team knocked Bagby off the rubber in the eighth inning and he was succeeded by Beebe, who not only finished this game, but also pitched fine ball in the second contest.

JOHNNY DUNDEE.
NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—Johnny Dundee, the well known Scotch Wop, who has been boxing in the lightweight class for several years, but who here to has not been known as a heavy hitter, has developed a real punch at last. The new blow is terrific, and is a short right hand cork screw punch under the heart. He has worked for months to develop this punch and now has it working smoothly and with great precision. The first time he used the new punch in a real fight was in his recent bout with Johnny O'Leary at Boston. O'Leary was out for three hours after Dundee shot the blow home. Now Dundee is going after Joe Welling, the promising Chicago lightweight, and then hopes to take on Freddie Welsh, the champion.

LARRY DOYLE
NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—Larry Doyle, the hard-hitting and splendid fielding member of the New York Giants, made his first error out of 69 chances, last week. It wasn't a batted ball that broke his string, either. In a game with the St. Louis team, Rariden threw to Doyle as Smith was sliding for base. After tagging Smith, Doyle dropped the ball. Up to that time, Larry had accepted 60 chances without an error.

Committees To Decide Details Of Cycle Prize

At a meeting of the executive committee of the Chamber of Commerce and a committee from the Lima Motorcycle club next week, details in regard to the presentation by the former organization of a loving cup to the winner of the 25-mile event at the motorcycle races at Lima Driving park on Labor day, will be worked out.

Members of the executive committee of the chamber decided this last night at their monthly meeting. The importance of the meet was considered by the body of representative business men as a good advertisement for the city. Motor magazines throughout the United States will carry stories of the results.

The secretary of the club has been busy engaged today in answering queries in regard to the possibility of a cup being given away to the winner of the big event of the meet. As soon as the trophy is purchased it will be placed in the window of a local store.

Requests for entry blanks from celebrated riders throughout the United States continue to flood the office of the secretary of the motorcycle club. Already one of the best fields ever entered a local motor meet is assured.

With meets at Toledo and Columbus on Sunday, there is little doubt but that there will be a large number of post entries. Immediately after finishing the races in these two cities on Sunday, those entered here will ship their machines to Lima.

In addition to Smith, the local entry who is scheduled, it is rumored that several unknown Lima lads intend to sign entry blanks entitling them to compete in the races on Labor day. Owing to parental objection they desire that their names be kept a secret until the day of the meet.

The side car race, which is always contested by local entries, promises to be one of the most exciting events on the program. These three-wheelers are expected to show some speed in circling the half-mile oval. With the driver getting all the speed possible out of his machine and the occupant of the side car trying to assist in keeping the equilibrium of the car on the turns, the race is far from slow.

Arrangements will be made with the care-taker of the track to allow drivers to work out by the middle of next week. Everything toward speeding up the oval has been looked after, and officials of the club predict one of the best meets in regard to time ever held on the local track.

Advance sales of tickets predict one of the largest crowds of the season. Pastboard holders for the event are already becoming quite common. In anticipation of the rush for tickets at the last moment, Mail orders from surrounding towns are becoming more frequent every day.

Officials of the meet feel much gratified over the outlook of the meet. Never before in the history of races promoted by the club has requests from celebrated riders for entry blanks been so numerous. This is an indication of the importance of the meet, according to members of the Lima Motorcycle club.

Cincy Is Loser to Brooklyn

CINCINNATI, O., Aug. 26.—Two of Cincinnati's errors were costly and Brooklyn took the second game of the series here yesterday, 3 to 2. Only four hits were made off Cheney, but three of them were in one inning, and together with a base on balls, netted the locals the runs they got.

The leaders hit Mitchell freely, but only scored one earned run that being in the second inning, when Goetz tripled and scored on Miller's single.

SELLING MOVEMENT
WALL ST. FUTURE

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—The selling movement which was the feature of the late trading yesterday, made further progress at the beginning of business on the stock exchange today, when nearly all the leading issues were in supply at concessions, and losses of around a point were made in a number of issues during the first fifteen minutes. Steel Common sold down to 96 1/2 against 97 at the close yesterday. Reading yielded 1 1/4 to 104 1/4. Union Pacific 1 1/4 to 140 1/4 and Anaconda 1 1/4 to 85 1/4.

The chief market incentive was a statement contained in the Washington dispatches in regard to the railway situation published this morning.

After the first 15 minutes trading some rallies occurred. General Motors sold at 57 1/2 and 57 3/4 against 57 1/2, the last sale on Wednesday. Inspiration copper declined a point to 54 1/2.

The stock market closed firm. Government bonds unchanged; railway and other bonds strong.

STATEN ISLANDERS REVOLT AS GARBAGE IS DUMPED NEAR

Greater New York Faces Revolutionary Tactics of Enraged Dwellers.

Threaten to Secede as Bor- ough From Tyranny of Manhattan.

By Frederic J. Haskin.

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—The people of Staten Island have given the lie once and for all to that oft-heard complaint that the fiery spirit of freedom and revolt which brought this nation into being is dormant or moribund.

In defense of their rights as American citizens, these Staten Islanders have registered a kick round Manhattan—and especially round City Hall. They have staged a stirring revolution with alarms and excursions galore, blowing of whistles and ringing of bells, clamorous mass meetings, midnight surprises and daring captures of the enemy. The Boston patriots threw a few hundred pounds of tea into the bay. The New York revolutionists have outdone them in about the usual ratio of New York to Boston by keeping two million tons of garbage out of their part of the bay.

Yes, that's what the war is all about—garbage. Not the most romantic cause in the world, but dignified by its immensity. For Staten Islanders are threatened with the garbage of all New York, with thousands of tons of garbage daily floating past their waterfront, assaulting their nostrils, and unloading on their shores to be converted into fertilizer for the profit of Manhattan! For four months a force of arms and cunning of strategy, the Islanders have blocked every effort of the contractors to gain a foothold on their father-borough, and now, pushed to desperate remedies, they have made their declaration of independence. They propose to secede from the city of Greater New York, and constitute themselves a separate municipality, the health department of which will forthwith proclaim the garbage plant a nuisance and a menace and abolish it once and for all.

The garbage plant is not the whole or only trouble by any means. This is the situation: Although Staten Island is about 18 per cent of the area of New York, it has only a hundred thousand people, so that numerically it is the weakest of the five boroughs. It has only one vote out of sixteen on the board of estimates, and only three out of seventy-three aldermen are its representatives. Hence, Staten Island has a tendency to become the goat. When the subway system was built, campaign promises were that it should connect all five boroughs, but Staten Island has no subway yet. It has, however, several other things it doesn't want, including a tuberculosis hospital, and other city institutions of an undesirable sort. Furthermore, although still a suburban and partly a farming community, it is burdened with the same restrictions as the tenement districts. The farmers for example, can keep scarcely any live stock. Formerly the borough produced all of its own milk. Now there are not 50 cows on the island and the milk comes all the way across Manhattan.

Staten Island has endured all of these things with patience if not resignation. Then came the proposal to dump the garbage of the city on the island—and the goat rose on its hind legs and received the proposition on both horns.

The way in which the Staten Islanders have defeated the purpose and will of the greatest city in the world for four months is a most interesting and unusual story. Good Queen Anne of colonial days is an essential factor in the plot. It seems that to some bothersome courtier she granted all of the waterfront on the island which did not already belong to somebody else. At the time nobody wanted any of it, for it was a desolate waste of marshland. Now that it has become valuable, there are a number of different titles.

When the garbage plant lay had been passed, a certain real estate man was given a contract to furnish a site for the plant for $60,000. He accordingly selected a piece of land and bought one of the titles to it. Mr. E. P. Doyle, a citizen of the island who owns a large amount of property there, promptly bought another title to the same land and put the cabin of a houseboat on it. The Staten Islanders, who had meantime organized in a series of indignation meetings, under the leadership of William Wirt Mills, executive officer of their Civic league, stationed an armed guard over the property.

Now it would require years of litigation to decide who really owned that piece of land, and the contractor was not minded to wait that long—in fact, he couldn't afford to do so. Accordingly, he too organized an armed force of 19 men, which was about three times as large as that of the citizens. In the dead of night he descended upon the contested tract, surrounded the cabin, took the citizen guard prisoners, and removed them to New York. He also placed in the cabin six of his own force to hold it against all invaders.

Now here was a most amazing situation in the midst of the metropolis of our civilization—two armed parties fighting over a piece of real estate in the city of New York. As soon as the citizens were released, they appealed to the police for protection. But the police, for various reasons more or less clear, either couldn't or wouldn't oust the invaders. Thereupon Roger Doyle, son of the citizen owner, kicked in the door of the cabin, entered, and demanded that the occupants surrender, asserting on his part the right of any citizen to arrest a law breaker. The guards were overawed and surrendered.

The citizens now held the fort, but not for long. With a large force from a detective agency, the contractor again effected a night capture and put his own men in the cabin, which was strongly barricaded. Again the Ethan Allen of the island demanded their surrender. He tried to effect an entrance, but couldn't. Thereupon he went up the bay, got a large scow and a crane, swung the cabin aboard and floated the enemy, fort and all back to Manhattan.

After these harrowing experiences, the contractor decided that he did not want that particular site after all, so he selected a second one to which the title was more secure, and is still holding it. When it came to build the proposed plant, however, it was necessary to get a permit from the borough government, and this was refused. Now the processes of law were finally gotten under way, and the court issued a peremptory mandamus to the borough to grant the necessary permit. Accordingly, the permit was drawn up and signed by the clerk, when then went on a long vacation without leaving any address.

When the contractor came for the permit, it could not be found. The clerk's desk was ransacked in vain. Finally, the combination of the safe was found, and this too was searched without avail. No possible hiding place was left except an inner compartment to which the clerk had the only key. This compartment was broken into, and the permit found.

So, at last, after four months of delay, the city is ready to erect its garbage plant, having obtained its permit to do so, as the Staten Islanders say, by burglary.

That is not all they say, either. Some of the remarks in the last bulletin of their Civic league make the Declaration of Independence sound like a commencement oration. This is the way they summarize the situation.

The united opposition of the people of Staten Island has for four months prevented the establishment here of a garbage reduction plant.

The continued opposition of the people of this borough can prevent for all time this threatened destruction of our health, our homes and our property.

The complete success of this fight for self preservation requires loyalty, courage and money.

No Staten Islander should give aid or comfort to the enemies of Staten Island, or minimize the perils of threatened invasion.

This is the time to stand fast on our rights and fight.

We don't want the garbage plant we won't have it!

At the next session of the New York legislature, a bill is to be presented providing for the establishment of Staten Island as a separate city. After being passed by the legislature, the bill will have to come before the mayor. He is expected to veto it. The bill must then be passed again over his veto. So the road to freedom is not easy. But the people are determined and for the most part in harmony. They say that it is only a matter of time until the city of Staten Island will be created.

GREENWOOD AND HOLLY.

The greenwood tree of English song and story is now said to have been the holly, which retains its bright dress the year round and is supposed of have stood Robin Hood and other outlaws in good stead when, clad in Lincoln green, they sought its shelter, depending on the law of protective coloration to escape the laws of Nottingham town and other troublesomely inquisitive municipalities.—Exchange

WHEN IT RAINS THE ARMY JUST SINGS DOWN IN MEXICO

Cheerful Spirit Keeps U. S. Soldier Boys in Good Health.

Pershing's Army is Making Best of the Disagreeable Weather and Sich.

HEADQUARTERS, American Punitive Expedition, Mexico, (via motor truck train to Columbus, N. M.), August 26.—The camp is a good deal healthier than it has a right to be in considering this do not forget that it is due in no small measure to the cheerfulness and spirit of the American soldier under all circumstances.

Thus spoke the eminent sanitary expert after he had inspected this camp and while he was waiting for the motor truck train that would take him back to the states. The eminent sanitary expert carried credentials from the war department, a camera and wore a white stock. He seemed to be acquainted personally with all manner of insects and microbes, calling them familiarly by their Latin names.

But he knew a good deal about human nature, too. Witness the statement just quoted and witness this day in camp.

It is raining. It has been raining since morning. It began over Pajarito mountain and swept a torrent down on the camp. The rain is quick-firing against the taut surface of this tent with the sound of a thousand frying pans sputtering at once. The ditch around the tent is pretty nearly filled and the water is gurgling and rippling to the main drain trench. Some of the ditches have proved false to their trust and the water—gurgling and rippling—just as cheerfully—is backing into the less fortunate tents.

The rain has even caused the cancellation of the evening band concert and this is a great misfortune, almost as great as the news that the truck train carrying the mail has been delayed and will not be in until tomorrow morning.

Altogether it should be a despondent sort of a day. But it would take more rain than it took to flood the Ark to dampen the spirits of the camp.

Listen! Through the mist comes the sound of singing.

'And if I stay out late at night I get a whippin' when I get back home.'

The negroes of company—infantry, are crooning 'Sally' their favorite ballad and enjoying it very much. After each verse the unmistakable 'yah-yah' of the negro laugh sounds over the camp.

A trooper is hurrying across a parade under a slicker. As he reaches the main ditch he slips and takes a header into it. He is cheered by the guard on the picket line. He responds by bowing effusively and announcing himself as 'Mademoiselle Farina, the Diving Venus'.

There is a good natured discussion now on the picket line regarding a broken rake-handle.

'I'm chief hay-pusher in this here army,' says Walters of the artillery. 'And I broke that rake-handle in pursuit of me dooty.'

'You broke that rake-handle leaning on it,' retorts the man who carries the other half of Walters' shelter tent.

From the west a troop of cavalry comes plop-plopping through the mud. Their campaign hats flop moistly and their ponchos are slick with the wet. But they are singing, too. They are singing 'Tipperary'.

The officer at the head of the column waves his hand gaily as he passes. A little later he comes in the tent, still soaked.

'Tough luck, old-timers,' consoles one of the party in the tent.

'Don't mention it, thanks,' says the cavalryman. 'One night's camp at Colonia Juarez is worth suffering a week of rain. We were there night before last. The men seemed to enjoy it a whole lot.'

There follows an enthusiastic description of an ideal camping spot. In the next tent an officer is calling for his striker and a shovel and a pick.

'Have you fellows a sponge?' he calls across to this tent when an investigation head is poked out of the flap. 'I know just how Noah felt. I'm flooded to a fare-thee-well. A blotter would help.'

From the mess comes an appetizing smell of onions and hot coffee and 'nine kinds of meat'—as hash is known to us.

The negro soldiers are singing 'Sally' again.

'I'm glad my mammy doan' know where I'm at'

'My daddy neither—!'

Johnny, the mess-boy, appears at the tent flap, dripping. Formally he announces supper, as follows:

'Come get it!'

We grab slickers, ponchos and blankets and splash for the mess-tent.

7:30 P. M.—The mail orderly just arrived with a hatful of letters from home! Our tent is singing 'Sally' and enjoying it very much.

HE COULD HARDLY WALK.

Deranged kidneys cause rheumatism, aches, pains, soreness, stiffness. Ambrose Gary, Sulphur, Okla., writes: 'I was lathered with kidney trouble ten years and at times could hardly walk. I began taking Foley Kidney Pills. I got relief from the first but continued till I had taken three bottles. I feel like a new man.' H. F. Vortkamp, tinsmith.

TOTALS FOR FOREIGN TRADE.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—Figures today made public by the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce, department of commerce, show American imports for July were valued at 183 million dollars, a falling off of 63 million dollars compared with June. July exports amounted to 446 million dollars, a decrease of 19 million dollars compared with the previous month. But although the total foreign trade for the month fell below that for the record month of June it exceeded that of the previous July by 40 million dollars and is the July record for American trade.

The foreign trade for the year ending with July last also marks a new high record, being 6,748 million dollars, compared with 6,540 million in 1915. The 12 months' imports aggregated 2,237 million dollars, against 1,658 million last year, and exports 4,111 million compared with 2,883 million last year.

The favorable balance of trade for July was 263 million dollars, and for the year, 2,273 million. A year ago the export balance was 125 million for July and 1,225 million for the 12 months, while two years ago there was an import balance of 5 1-2 million for the month of July and an export balance of 443 million for the 12 months.

On the July imports, 64.8 per cent entered free of duty, compared with 64.5 per cent in July, 1915.

The month showed a continuation of the net inward gold movement. For July gold imports aggregated 62 million dollars, as against gold exports for 9 million. Last year July showed gold imports of 17 million and exports of 2 million, while two years ago July gold import were but 3 million as against gold exports of 33 million dollars. The net inward gold movement for the 12 months to August 1, 1916, aggregated 441 million dollars, as against 71 million in the preceding year and a net outward gold movement of 75 million in a like period two years ago.

ILLICIT STILL IS FOUND IN OHIO PEN

COLUMBUS, Aug. 26.—An embryo moonshine distillery has just been unearthed at the penitentiary, it is claimed. Guards, it is said, caught Charles Mims, Scioto county forger, stealing corn and molasses from the prison kitchen. Mims, who is said to be a former Kentucky moonshiner, worked in the prison barbershop. To convince getting a shave, it is claimed, Mims would give a 'tonic' which possessed the 'kick' of a real 'eye-opener.'

KOENIG GETS DEGREE.

BERLIN, Aug. 26.—A degree honoris causa has been conferred upon Captain Paul Koenig by the medical section of Halle university for his exploit in taking the merchant submarine Deutschland to the United States and bringing her back to Germany.

HOTELS AND THIRTEEN.

One of the big hotels in the up-town shopping district of New York considers the number of superstitious travelers sufficiently large to justify a concession to them. The elevator indicators in this hotel show that there is a twelfth floor and a fourteenth, but the figure 13 does not appear on the dial. From the 1200's the rooms jump to the 1400's. Clerks in hotels which have a thirteenth floor say that the number of patrons who insist on avoiding the hoodoo number is large. Frequently a person assigned to that floor asks to be transferred even if her removal to another floor means the exchange of an outside room for one inside.—New York Sun.

NEW YORK.—F. F. Winter, of Cleveland, John Frost of San Antonio, and Mr. and Mrs. Chester Snow, of Boston, came to town yesterday and at once the torrid spell was broken.
